

SMS Gateway For Networks

A Simple Text Gateway...

As ICT Managers, we ask ourselves: "Where does SMS fit in our ICT strategy (if at all)?"

We would like to answer that question with a simple, low cost approach.

SMS (or Texting) is an ideal way to communicate simple, factual information direct to a person. It can reach them almost anywhere and arrives in a simple and discreet manner. A text message may be read during a meeting, whereas a voice message will be ignored until later.

Coretalk will reside (as a service) on any Windows server in your business and can be accessed by staff easily to...

- Send a text from their email
- Send a text from a Coretalk Client
- Automatically forward (selected) emails as a text when out of office
- Text from phone which will be sent as an email
- Send a text to a group of people

Coretalk manages texting in a simple and effective manner. Because Coretalk resides on your server, there are no security issues or connections with remote providers. You have total control of the service.

If all you want is simple messaging, then contact us now.

Or A Business Tool?

Texting can take you further. Can you imagine....

A sales person sending a text to find out stock details for a product and having an immediate automated response?

A customer receiving an alert that their account has gone on credit hold?

Marketing running a promotional competition using text?

A web customer receiving a shipping text for their order?

The sales manager knowing your largest customer has gone on credit hold?

Coretalk can interact directly with most databases and send messages using that data. It is simple and the message transacts quickly.

Coretalk can also take data from flat files to run promotions or deliver timely information. It can use data from that file to customise the message for each recipient.

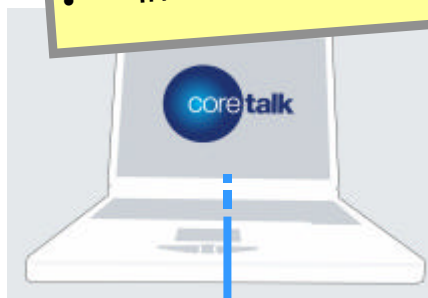

The competition line enables you to run simple or complex competitions with automated responses included.

A simple gateway or a sophisticated business tool. At $80 per month plus text costs, it doesn't really matter.

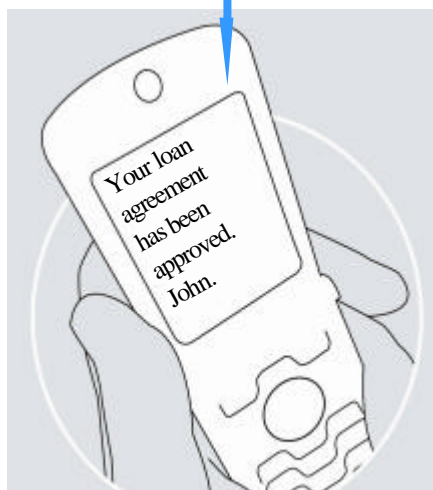

Coretalk delivers both!!
